D. D. M'KAY TO STAY DEMOCRAT

Declines Farmer-Labor Candidacy for Governor; May Run for Senator

Donald D. McKay, president of the Utah State Farm bureau, emphatically declares that he is not a candidate for governor on the Farmer-Labor ticket. He said that he had been affiliated with the Democratic party all his life and could see no good reason for making a change. Mr. McKay stated that his attention had been called to the fact that the Farmer-Labor party of Utah had mentioned him as governor and that he wanted to correct the impression that he would accept the nomination. Mr. McKay said that members of the Democratic party had urged him to run for the four-year term of state senator. If the nomination is tendered to him at the Democratic convention next month, he will accept it, he said.

It's Great to Be a Kid When Circus Here

The press agent of the John Robinson's circus unloaded the following on the editor of the Standard-Examiner.

It's great to be a kid once more, and hear the lions growl and roar, and see the bears, and feed the monkeys, and sprinkle peanuts on the trunks of the elephants, all in a row, that keep a-swinging to and fro; it's grand, you know, to be a kid and see John Robinson's big show.

It's great to sit and watch the clown perform their funny ups and downs, and see them laugh, and hear them chaff until you split your sides in half; and watch those blokes play wicked jokes upon some unsuspecting monkeys, as fat and thin they amble in to make you squeal and smile and grin.

It's fine to sit and watch the rings that hold so many, many things, with horses here and horses there; and pretty girls with golden curls, performing scary mid-air whirls, and drivers bold in cars of gold, that race as in the days of old, and monkeys that will ride astride of ponies that are true and tried, and throw a ball, but never fail; it's mighty hard to watch it all.

It's great to see the circus parade, and swallow circus lemonade, and see the lights and wonder signs, and pretty girls in spangled lights; and least your gaze upon the blaze the tent displays. Oh! once a year, it's grand, you know, to see the circus show.

After unbosoming of the above, the circus man intimated that John Robinson's Circus will be in Ogden Thursday, August 26—one day only.

'DEEP PURPLE' COMES TO OGDEN THEATRE NEXT SUNDAY

The appearance of Helen Ware, celebrated emotional actress, in R. A. Walsh's first independent production, "The Deep Purple," which is coming to the Ogden theatre on Sunday brings to completion a chain of coincidences as interesting as any evolved by the imaginations of fiction writers.

For years, Miss Ware had maintained a close friendship with the late Paul Armstrong, who, in collaboration with Wilson Mizner, wrote the stage success on which "The Deep Purple" is based. Mr. Armstrong created the vivid role of "Frisco Kate" especially for Miss Ware, moulding the character to fit the personality of the actress. Miss Ware rehearsed the part for several weeks and was confident that it would prove one of the strongest and most effective character creations of her career.

In creating the role of "Frisco Kate," Miss Ware saw the fruition of one of her most cherished ambitions—to interpret a character written by her friend, Armstrong. A few days before the opening night, however, it was found that a previous contract called for her to start on a road tour with another show. Regrettably, Miss Ware was forced to abandon her part in "The Deep Purple."

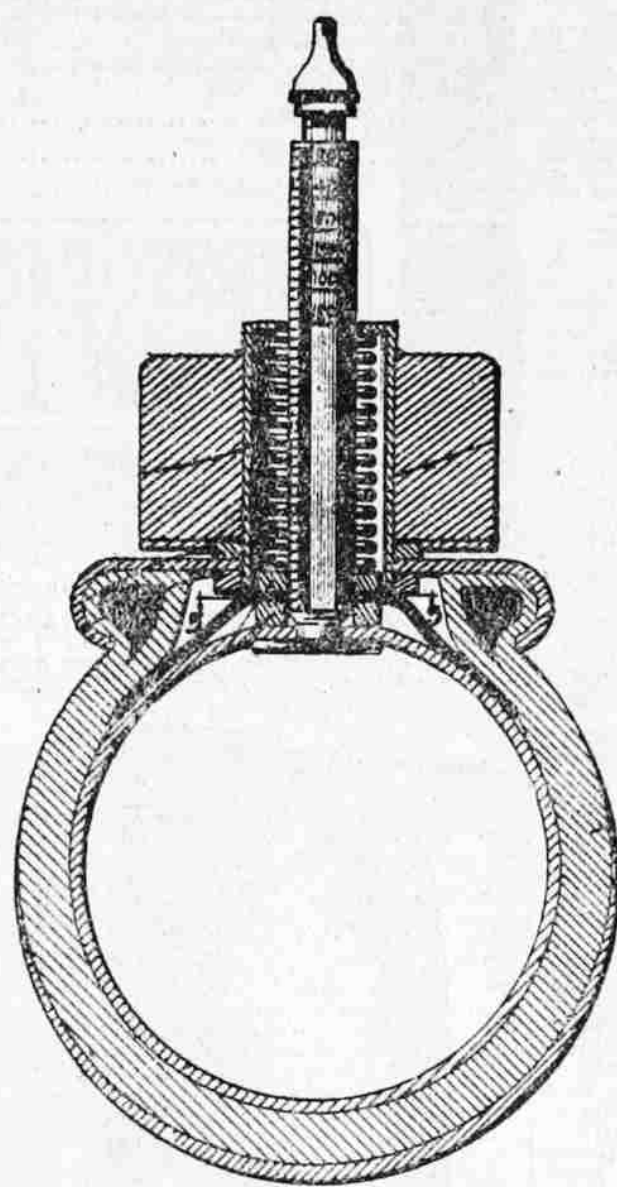

In preparing for his picture version of "The Deep Purple," Director Walsh found considerable difficulty in finding a suitable type for the "Frisco Kate" part. Miss Ware's name was suggested, the director, who had seen her on the stage lost no time in arranging for her appearance in the picture. Thus the actress gratified her ambition and her enthusiasm over the fortunate coincidence is evidenced by her work.

The Ellis Tire Pressure Gauge

is an entirely new device

Some people have confused the Ellis Automatic Tire Pressure Gauge with a recently published account of another tire gauge manufactured in the east, designs of which have recently appeared in the magazines and technical journals. There is a great deal of difference in the two gauges and also a great deal of difference in their construction and action. The gauge referred to above takes its air pressure measurements from the inside of the valve stem, a new valve stem and entirely new valve having to be installed in order to use the gauge. Then a glass globe is screwed over the outside of the valve stem and the indicator figures must be read through this glass globe, the globe having to be screwed off and on each time the tire is inflated. This glass globe must be made, if possible, in such a way so that it will hold the tremendous air pressure of the tire and also resist breakage when the car is running over rough roads, or when the wheel gets a sudden twist or is unavoidably run flat for a few yards after a blowout or puncture. How this feat is accomplished is not clear.

The Ellis Automatic Tire Gauge takes its air pressure measurements from the OUTSIDE of the inner tube; it is applied directly over the outside of the regular Schrader valve and valve stem, the valve stem not having to be removed from the inner tube to make application of the gauge. This is the valve that is now universally used on all cars the world over. Thus the Ellis gauge does away with the necessity of purchasing a new valve or valve stem. Its indicator figures are large and easily read, and they are not covered by any glass globes or anything of any nature. The Ellis Gauge is made entirely of metal, is practically indestructible and is absolutely guaranteed for the life of the car. There are no glass globes nor anything else to unscrew or remove when inflating or deflating the tire, or removing tire from rim, or removing rim from wheel.

The Ellis Tire Gauge, unlike other tire gauges, cannot leak. In fact, we will guarantee that it will not leak so much as a pound of air a year. Its efficiency as a gauge has been tested and proved to be absolutely accurate. If the tire is inflated the air pressure absolutely must be recorded on the indicator tube accurately, and if the tire is deflated the pressure must be shown in the same manner, for the reason that the gauge is entirely automatic in its action. Then again, the gauge is in no wise constructed in a delicate manner—mud, water, dust, heat—have no effect on its efficiency. If you have any air pressure in your tire at all the Ellis Gauge will tell you how much you've got, and you won't have to look through a dirty, dusty, greasy glass globe to see it, and you don't have to worry about smashing glass globes or anything else, for the only way you can break an Ellis Gauge is to wreck your car, and then you won't have much use for any kind of a gauge, and even after wrecking the car the chances are a hundred to one that you will find the Ellis gauges intact and doing business.

The Ellis Tire Gauge is built on an entirely new principle and is conceded by those who have examined it to be one of the finest auto accessories yet devised. The idea of taking the pressure of the tire and recording it from the outside of the inner tube is original with Dex B. Ellis of Ogden, and we mean to raise our capital and build our factory right here in Ogden, and supply the tremendous demand from this point. If we cannot interest sufficient people financially in Ogden and surrounding country to accomplish our purpose, of course, in that event we will have to seek a new field, but we are going to put these gauges on the market in a very short time, and those who invest now in the stock of this company are getting in on the ground floor of what we believe to be one of the best propositions from the standpoint of investment that has ever been offered to the people of this community. Mr. Ellis is a laboring man himself and has put every dollar of surplus money that he has earned into the perfecting of this device. He fully expects to reap a rich reward and would like to see every person that he knows in this community, and they are legion, make dollar for dollar with him according to the amount of stock they purchase. A man needs assistance when he is trying to build a successful enterprise, not after he has made a success of it. The only way you can make big money out of a big business is to help build it. A simple, successful invention which is conceded to be a necessity is the shortest road to wealth. Some of the greatest fortunes in this country have been made entirely from inventions. How much would you be worth today had you invested a few hundred dollars in any one of the numerous inventions pertaining to automobiles a few years since. The foundation of one of the greatest fortunes here in Ogden can be traced entirely to a well known invention, and you won't have much trouble in guessing just what this invention was.

C., has returned to Ogden to spend a two weeks' vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Kay. Oppose Operation of Ogden-Brigham Motors Formal protest against the granting of the application of Lorenzo R. Thompson and J. S. Forsgren, for permission to operate an automobile freight and express line between Ogden and Brigham City, was filed with the public utilities commission of Utah yesterday by the Utah-Idaho Central and the Oregon Short Line railroads, according to Salt Lake dispatches. The railroads point out that they pay a large share of the taxes, and assert that it is unjust that, while they are supplying an allegedly adequate service, they should be compelled to furnish money to build roads over which a competitor who pays but little taxes may operate.

In some parts of England "burial cakes" are still served at funerals.

We are very careful when we speak of the economy of fine coffee—it costs just about the same per cup as ordinary coffee.

Don't have to be so careful about tea. A cup of fine tea is much cheaper than common tea. There's no comparison.

There's no excuse for anybody getting common tea when Schilling Tea is right there at your grocer's, and your money back if you want it.

OGDEN WOMAN DECLARES SHE WAS MISERABLE

From Rheumatism and Indigestion Until She Took Tanlac

"Giving a testimonial for a medicine is something I never thought of doing, but Tanlac has helped me so much that for the sake of others I am glad to make a public statement," said Mrs. A. Brandies, of 236 Twenty-second street, Ogden, Utah, recently.

"About a year and a half ago I had a severe attack of influenza, which left me suffering from indigestion, rheumatism and other troubles. My stomach was so upset that nothing agreed with me, for always after meals I had a dull, heavy feeling, with almost unbearable pains in the pit of my stomach. I was badly crippled up with rheumatism and my feet were so swollen I could hardly stand to wear my shoes. I was extremely nervous, any sudden noise would make me jump, and it was no unusual thing for me to roll and toss for hours at night before getting to sleep. My strength seemed to be completely gone and I felt miserable all the time."

"Although I tried many different medicines, I never found anything to do me any real good until I got Tanlac, but this medicine began to build me up right from the start. I have just finished my fourth bottle of Tanlac and it has given me absolute relief from all my troubles. My appetite is just fine and I can eat anything and everything I want without suffering any distress whatever after meals. The rheumatism has quit troubling me, and the swelling has gone out of my feet, so that I can wear my shoes and walk with ease. My nerves are steady as a clock, and in every way I am feeling stronger and better than for a long time. Tanlac has certainly done me a world of good, and I think so much of it I am constantly telling my friends about it."

Tanlac is sold in Ogden by A. R. McIntyre Drug Co. Two busy stores. —Advertisement.

A WOMAN DOCTOR

"Eugenics is a necessary factor in the future of the race. The average American girl is unfit for motherhood." This may be true, but if weak and ailing girls passing from girlhood to womanhood would only rely, as thousands do, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—that simple remedy made from roots and herbs—to restore the system to a normal healthy condition, it would cause many ill from which they suffer to disappear, so that motherhood might become the joy of their lives.
